Enforcement for the aviation industry

The power of the High Court writ

At The Sheriffs Office we provide a full range of specialist and effective enforcement services for the aviation industry, including:

- Recovery of aircraft on behalf of the aircraft financier
- Recovery of engines at end of lease
- Seizure of aircraft as a high value asset to recover sums owed for creditors
- Seizure of aircraft on behalf of creditors with foreign judgments

The High Court writ authorises us to seize assets until the matter is resolved and it is a criminal offence for the defendant to remove or dispose of them.

We are one of the largest and most successful firms of authorised High Court Enforcement Officers (HCEOs) in the country, with a recovery rate which is consistently far in excess of the national average.

Recovery of aircraft and engines

If payment or contract terms have been breached or engines are not returned at the end of lease, the finance company may request the return of the aircraft or engines.

This will be carried out under a High Court writ of delivery, which instructs us, as authorised HCEOs, to take control of the asset to return it to the claimant detailed on the writ.

If money is also owed, an order for money may be added to a writ of delivery, so that we can recover any debt at the same time and under the same writ.

Enforcing a money judgment

When a judgment for money has been obtained against an airline, this can be transferred up to the High Court for enforcement under a writ of control.

If the judgment is for a large amount, seizing and grounding an aircraft under the authority of the writ will, in the majority of cases, encourage payment.

If payment is not made within the set time period, the aircraft may be sold to pay the judgment debt. We undertake ownership and mortgage checks prior to enforcement to reduce the likelihood of a third party claim.

Enforcing foreign judgments

Where a judgment has been made in another country and the creditor knows that the aircraft will be in England or Wales for a certain period of time, the judgment may still be enforced by The Sheriffs Office using a European Enforcement Order or a reciprocal treaty.
